Virtual event
31 May - 4 June 2021

The LEAP4FNSSA Project has received funding from the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under grant agreement No. 817663.

FNSSA Stakeholder Engagement Week Participant's Guide

General Information – Participants

Dear participant.

Welcome to the FNSSA Stakeholder Engagement Week.

In this general guide you will find information on how the Stakeholder Engagement Week on Food and Nutrition Security and Sustainable Agriculture (FNSSA) will work, background information on the FNSSA partnership, the full programme for the week, links to the sessions and to the virtual space and much more.

As you know, the SEW will be happen virtually from 31 May to 4 June 2021, and it is made up of sessions organized by a diverse set of actors and stakeholders of the FNSSA Partnership. A high-level opening plenary kicks off the week and will focus on the topic The FNSSA Partnership as a model for AU-EU Cooperation, and a closing plenary will examine Future orientations of the Partnership.

Background

Conceptual framework informing the session

In order to boost the impact of research and innovation (R&I), the African Union and European Union established a Research and Innovation Partnership with joint priority-setting, programming and implementation. The first thematic priority is on Food and Nutrition Security and Sustainable Agriculture (FNSSA), as described in its 2016 Roadmap. The Roadmap intends, in particular, to increase coherence between and build upon the many projects at the national, bilateral or bi-regional (Europe and Africa) levels. It also provides an opportunity for alignment of the many networks linked to agriculture research that currently exists.

With the Roadmap, leaders from both continents clearly expressed their desire to achieve more impact on the ground. Since the adoption of the Roadmap, significant investment has been made to support its implementation. A number of projects and initiatives have been funded to address the priority themes, launching a diverse, multi-actor community dedicated to EU-AU cooperation in FNSSA and resulting in increased knowledge and concrete outcomes for improving food and nutrition security and sustainable agriculture in Europe and in Africa.

Stakeholder engagement is critical for realizing systemic transformation of our food system and for ensuring food and nutrition security for future generations. These changes require a joint effort from all stakeholders, from all sectors and from all regions. The involvement of stakeholders will build collaboration and knowledge exchange and co-creation to increase impact. In the SEW and in the plenary in particular we want to bring different stakeholder views together and demonstrate the value of the FNSSA Partnership.

The event will:

- foster the engagement of stakeholders such as funders, SMEs, farmers, researchers, government organizations, private sector organizations and strategic decision-makers;
- highlight the results and outcomes of the investments made towards the FNSSA Partnership and encourage clustering around the FNSSA Roadmap; and
- gather information and ideas on the experiences, challenges, feedback and recommendations to further develop the R&I Partnership on FNSSA.

The discussions at the Stakeholder Engagement Week will contribute to the preparations of two key upcoming summits: the United Nations Food Systems Summit and the AU-EU Summit. The main messages from this Week will be collected into a document and shared as a contribution to these summits.

The closing plenary will harvest the fruits of all the sessions and discuss them.

it. In the plethora of online platforms, FOSC Knowledge Platform strongly aspires to act synergically with the already existing initiatives, avoiding duplication and redundancy. To face this challenge, the most significant and impacting missing needs should be recognized and solved at a very early stage.

Together with valuable speakers reporting their experiences, we will firstly present consolidated or forthcoming international initiatives in the remit of food systems and climate change. We will then open a dialogue with the participants guided by some key questions, such as:

- Are you aware of other useful knowledge platform-like tools in the food systems and climate change fields?
- Which are the main benefits and lacks of existing platforms you are familiar with?
- What would make a new knowledge platform attractive to you?

Through this debate, we aim at i) increasing the awareness of participants in available knowledge platforms in the above fields, and ii) carrying out a gap analysis on the strengths and weaknesses of these initiatives. Besides, the gathered feedbacks will be strongly taken into consideration for the set-up and launch of the FOSC Knowledge Platform.

	Description: Under the aegis of the FNSSA Partnership, substantial and varied bi-regional research and innovation cooperation has taken place, with over 390 M€ mobilized to fund research and innovation projects. Learning from the implementation of this Partnership is critical for improving coordination and cooperation in the FNSSA Partnership as well as in other areas of AU-EU research and innovation cooperation. The session will consider how to keep the FNSSA Partnership fit for purpose and support future collaboration in FNSSA. This session will examine four of the six key principles proposed for an International Research Consortium in FNSSA - inclusiveness, co-design, R&amp;I for impact, and sustainability and adaptability. Drawing on evidence from three recent studies of the Partnership and in dialogue with session participants, recommendations and actions needed to best fulfil these principles will be made. This session aims to provide participants with insight into the findings from three studies recently produced on the FNSSA Partnership and to facilitate an open dialogue on the actions needed to build a joint Platform for bi-regional cooperation in FNSSA.

Title: ICT for Agricultural Markets for Smallholder Farmers (ICT4A for Smallholder Farmers)

<https://zoom.us/j/92779243250>

Description:

Women and youth form over half of the agricultural labor force that feeds over 70% of the population in Africa. Despite smallholder farmers' contribution to food and nutrition security, they are the majority of people living in poverty and food and nutrition insecurity. Their inability to access profitable and sustainable markets for their agricultural produce and products, is hindered by a variety of factors including post-harvest storage facilities that reduce the value of their agricultural products, poor market infrastructure including market stalls and gender inclusive toilets and amenities, inadequate access to finance and credit, and ICT for Agriculture (ICT4A) to improve their productivity, climate change and the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic. Many economies around the world are transitioning and embracing online markets, cashless and mobile transactions.

The adoption of ICT in Africa is on a steady rise with both mobile and internet penetration recording up to 50% increase over the past decade in some countries. There is a tremendous increase in the urban population that accounts for the majority of internet and smartphone users. There is also a growing need and demand for fresh food in urban centers, a market that is ripe and ready for smallholder farmers.

This session will present current market constraints faced by smallholder farmers across the Eastern and Southern African region that can be solved through ICT4A. It will then focus on ongoing ICT innovations that enable rural smallholder farmers to access markets. The session will set a stage for the presentation and analysis of opportunities for these innovative solutions, their upscale and will explore further engagement of various sector players like the private sector and local smallholder communities in the market and value chain.

	The use of ICT4A has great potential to link rural and urban smallholder farmers to urban markets. The urban population is a ready market that is steadily moving online, especially in the advent of the pandemic.
11:00 AM - 13:00 PM	Organizer: COLEACP Title: Partnerships and multistakeholder approaches for impact Description: The linkages between research, policy and private sector are of paramount importance for a better adoption of research results. The impact of research needs to have an impact on smallholder farmers in terms of enhanced food and nutrition security. There is a need to promote multistakeholder dialogues which are action oriented with a common objective, shared means and measurement of impact. We will showcase in the session few different models and highlights which involve different stakeholders working towards a shared objective. Examples covered will include support to the value chain (from farm to fork), addressing food waste, skills enhancement, use of digital tools and innovations.	To join this session, click on the link below: https://coleacp-org.zoom.us/j/95140686600
13:00 PM - 15:00 PM	Organizer: Soils4Africa Title: Imperative for a Soil Information System to inform decision making for Sustainable intensification (Soils4Africa) Description:	This session requires separate registration. Registration link:

The current agricultural production system is largely unsustainable as it tends towards an overexploitation of the natural resources and in particular the soil. To continue to meet the growing demand for agricultural produce, it is widely recognised that agriculture needs to be intensified in a more sustainable way. Sustainable intensification of agriculture forms the context of the Soils4Africa project which is developing a Soil Information System (SIS) that will inform policy making for sustainable intensification on the continent.

The SIS will facilitate future monitoring and evaluation and it will enhance the performance of other land uses. It will become an essential part of the knowledge and information system of the EU-Africa Research and Innovation Partnership on Food and Nutrition Security and Sustainable Agriculture thus, contributing to the implementation of the High-Level Policy Dialogue roadmap for FNSSA. It will as such align with evolving design for agricultural development in Africa.

The SIS will contain data that are underpinned by rigorously selected soil quality indicators and a sound uniform methodology. The data sets will be updateable and interoperable with other relevant databases. It will have a user-friendly presentation to respond to the soil data needs of the broad stakeholder group such as researchers, farmers, other land users, fertilizer manufacturers, extension and advisory service providers, policymakers, among others.

To ensure the relevance and sustainability of the SIS, the project maintains active and continuous connection with stakeholders through the course of the project guided by FARA, leader of Soils4Africa's WP2: "Stakeholder Engagement".

The session aims to engage the EU/AU broad stakeholders' group in Africa agriculture, environment and natural resource management to discuss the imperative of a virile Soil

The project will manage and deliver services for the Development Smart Innovation through Research in Agriculture (DeSIRA) Initiative in support of DG INTPA, the involved European Delegations and stakeholders at large. The DeSIRA-LIFT project comprises both the delivery of pre-defined services and emerging on-demand services. The former is intended to create continuity and synergy, while the latter will ensure flexibility to deal with upcoming questions and requests. The services are divided into work packages (WPs). WP1 involves actions in support of running DeSIRA research and innovation projects in countries. WP2 will identify and implement support for the CAADP ex-pillar 4 organisations (FARA, AFAAS, ASARECA, CORAF, CCARDESA, GFAR), in close consultation with these organisations. WP3 aims at aims at supporting and designing DeSIRA pillar 3 activities, in other words, at making knowledge work for the EU (DG INTPA, EU delegations) and policy makers. It focuses on connecting integral results to the broader Agriculture Knowledge and Innovation System (AKIS), in particular within Europe and Africa. In this session, the DeSIRA-LIFT project and its work packages will be further introduced, but more importantly, this session is particularly designed to obtain a lively interaction with	To join this session, click on the link below: https://us02web.zoom.us/j/86433092389

Organizer: European Commission

Title: How research can better support innovation for the transformation of the agri-food systems in Africa?

Description:

The EU supports the DeSIRA initiative (<https://europa.eu/capacity4dev/desira>) with the objective to contribute to climate-relevant, productive and sustainable transformation of agriculture and food systems in low and middle-incomes countries. DeSIRA initiative aims to put more science into development considering that the solutions to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals are knowledge-intensive but context-specific. It puts special emphasis on multi-stakeholder approach and capacity strengthening to support innovation.

The objective of the session is to discuss the different innovation models which are under debate to support innovation in food systems in Africa and how research can make a contribution. This reflection is useful for improving innovation policies building on efficient partnerships and for improving research and innovation interventions to contribute to impacts.
